

Over 70 breathtaking computer-enhanced colour photographs taken by the Landsat spacecraft

A SURVEY OF THE WORLD FROM SPACE EARTH WATCH

Charles Sheffield

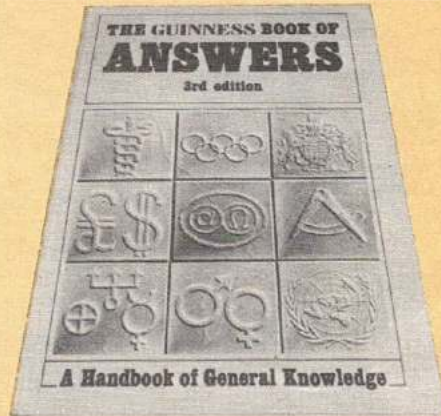

Earthwatch is an astounding and spectacularly beautiful space-eye view of our planet: a magnificent and highly acclaimed new book from Charles Sheffield, NASA expert and leading science fiction writer.

When the first photographic images returned from Landsat 1, the familiar blue-grey-brown swirls of earth seen from spacecraft in the past had become something quite extraordinarily different. Landsat contains the most highly advanced photographic equipment, and in these sophisticated images, the whole earth is on display in an unparalleled profusion of rich, dramatic textures and colours.

Alongside the photographs, Charles Sheffield of the United States Space Program has provided an illuminating text explaining exactly what these striking images reveal, and the vital information they contain for our future. Large Book Size: 12½ x 9½in / 160pp / 80pp colour photos / maps

THE GUINNESS BOOK OF ANSWERS

3rd Edition

Ever wanted to know the maximum speed of a sloth or the number of cinemas in Guatemala? Ever spent hours tracking down the inventor of margarine or the correct word for fear of slime? If so, then this astonishing book is just for you. Packed with information, both useful and bizarre, it systematically covers major and minor subjects – from astronomy and anthropology to languages, religions, engineering and inventions, music, medicine, and maths – giving concise answers to almost every factual question you can think of.

In fact, its encyclopaedic scope makes it an invaluable general reference work with hundreds of uses – whether you're searching for data on planetary diameters, chemical formulae, or a quick summary of Kierkegaard's philosophy. Real value for money – a fascinating book that's guaranteed to keep you well-informed and thoroughly entertained. 11½ x 8½in / 268pp / diagrams, photos, & illus / gazetteer / index
