THE CRYSTAL SHIP

● THE CRYSTAL SHIP — Joan D Vinge High over their home planet, a decadent, dying, drugged, oblivious people hover in a huge crystal spacecraft, while below their inheritors — a new and alien race — battle for supremacy against the forces of fear and superstition.

● MEGAN'S WORLD — Marta Randall The primitive planet of Taebish, where a feline race still fights with spears and worships bloodthirsty gods, should have been easy prey for the advanced Terrans to invade and plunder. Yet their plans go awry when a bionic woman takes the side of these alien people against her own.

● SCREWTOP — Vonda N McIntyre Isolated on a steaming, black and red prison planet, where survival was a game of chance no one ever won, three ill-assorted beings learn to love and struggle for life.

Edited by ROBERT SILVERBERG

Three alien worlds . . . three superb novellas . . . a unique exploration of uncharted dimensions, conceived and created by three of the most talented women writers in modern science fiction. Joan D Vinge, like her companions, is a young West Coast American, and has swiftly scored a resounding success in the sf field, with a Hugo Award in 1977 and a nomination for Fireship in 1979. Marta Randall has been making a mark with her short stories in New Worlds and New Dimensions, and Vonda N McIntyre has already achieved top professional honours with her brilliant novel Dreamsnake — winner of both the Hugo and the Nebula Award in 1979. Edited and with an introduction by Robert Silverberg, The Crystal Ship stands in a class of its own — a magnificent and important collection of original and inventive science fiction. 188pp

INTO THE SLAVE NEBULA

BY THE HUGO AWARD WINNER

'In those last few months Lars Talibrand travelled far and fast — from system to system, from star to star, backtracking, making false trails whenever he could spare a precious day or two. But he could not elude the patient death that dogged his footsteps . . .'

For Earth, it was a time of unprecedented peace and prosperity. Science had finally triumphed over the environment, and all conceivable human needs were taken care of by computers, robots and androids. There was nothing left for the men of Earth but to seek pleasure . . . pleasure in never-ending carnival — without inhibitions and without restraint.

Then someone murdered an android . . . a brutal senseless act of violence that seemed to be a throwback to the ancient past. But there was a reason behind the act — a reason that drove one young man on a fantastically dangerous mission to outlying primitive stars. There he learned the shocking truth that threatened the galaxy and all of mankind — a truth that meant that this universe must be shattered and reborn: even if the Earth died in the process . . . 7¾ x 5in / 176pp Millington £5.95
