

The SCIENCE FICTION Book Club News

A big black box. Nothing too strange about that, even if it was fifty feet high and two hundred feet long. But when the big black box settled squarely on forestry student Jerry Conklin's car... and when it killed an irate gun-wielding local... and when more of them started descending all over America... things seemed to be getting a little out of hand.

Were they alien constructs? Machines or creatures? Mindless or intelligent? No one knew.

In the meantime, people were getting frightened. And as for the big black boxes, they were quietly and efficiently reproducing themselves... 7¼ x 5 in / 288pp
