THE EXTRAORDINARY WORLD OF ANNE McCaffrey

ANNE McCaffrey OMNIBUS

Anne McCaffrey has been publishing science fiction successfully since 1953, winning both Hugo and Nebula Awards for her work, and gaining a popularity and fame that has gone way beyond the field — especially for her best-selling Dragonrider series. She currently lives and works in Ireland — at Dragonhold, in the hills of Wicklow County.

RESTOREE

The only warning was the sudden stench of a dead sea creature . . . then Sara could remember nothing clearly, just the horror of a huge black shape closing over her . . . an aura of alien terror . . . intense heat and shivering cold . . . excruciating pain . . . sawn bones and searing screams . . .

She had been walking in Central Park when it had happened. Now, when she woke up, she found herself on a world that wasn't earth, in a body that wasn't hers.

THE SHIP WHO SANG

The brain was perfect, the tiny, crippled body useless. So technology rescued the brain and put it into a completely different body — a spaceship.

Here the human mind, more subtle, infinitely more complex than any computer ever devised, could be linked to the strength, the power, and the incredible vastness of open space.

But the brain behind the ship had a personality — a living, loving personality with emotions and abilities all its own.

DECISION AT DOONA

Doona was a jewel of a planet — a pastoral paradise with rivers and lakes, mountains and seas.

The Terrans needed it as an overflow from the hysterical crowding of earth; a place to live and breathe and move, without restrictions.

The Hrrubans needed it to revitalise their decadent race, to give them back something of the old pioneering spirit.

So they both sent a colonising party . . .

DRAGON DRUMS

'Never had her wings responded so fully to her demands. Never had she flown so high, soaring, veering, gliding. The sun flew across her body, its rays burning into her eyes as she flew ever on and upwards.'

The latest spellbinding volume in Anne McCaffrey's Hugo and Nebula Award-winning series, chronicling the dramatic adventures of the youth, Piemur, singer at the Harper Craft Hall. His quick wits and special skills attract the attention of Masterharper Robinton, Menolly, and Sebell who send him to the drum-heights as a messenger-drum apprentice. While there he must keep a check on the troublesome Oldtimers and their strange traffic in fire lizards . . . 252pp
